Over the past month there has been lots of interest in the new Broadcast / 4EB Induction session booklet by Convenors. This is for Convenors only as all new broadcasters and others attending the session will receive their own copy.

If group Convenors would like a copy please ask the office.

At this time of the year with memberships due it is a good time for all group Convenors to check that their on-air group is all licenced.

This information is available to you by obtaining an up to date membership list from the office. You may already have a current listing as you chase up memberships for your group.

As a reminder It is a requirement that all on-air people are current members and appropriately licenced as per Radio 4EB Policy. If your membership or licence has lapsed you will need to re-new as soon as possible before doing your next program.

The Brisbane French Festival, 3rd edition took place at South Bank on the 14th of July, which is the actual date when Bastille Day is celebrated in France. We were extremely lucky that it didn't rain on the day, as the forecast was quite pessimistic.

We distributed advertising material supplied by 4EB and gave out information pamphlets.

From the 4EB van, Eric Guilhaurre ~ broadcaster and panel operator, organised games during the day. People had to guess either the singer, the song, or complete the missing words of popular French songs to win movie tickets. This was extremely enjoyable, especially when groups of young people took over the game to sing the songs in their entirety or to start singing a song of their choice.

The French programme was broadcast live at 5.00pm. Past the initial shyness and the daunting idea of "speaking on the radio" people gave their impressions on the festival in a very impromptu manner; this made for a very lively programme in the spirit of the festival.

The AICE Israeli Film Festival is spreading its wings in 2012, taking the best of Israeli cinema across Australia to Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, Adelaide and Perth. Produced by Palace Cinemas and the Australia Israel Cultural Exchange, and taking place for the first time outside of Melbourne and Sydney, the ninth AICE Israeli Film Festival will screen more films over more days than even before, with an expanded program of some of the best Israeli films from the last twelve months.

Diverse, complex, inspirational, and turbulent, the films screening at the AICE Israeli Film Festival hold up a mirror to Israeli society, exploring the myriad of stories from one of the most diverse and multi-racial countries in the world.

The Russian Resurrection Film Festival runs exclusively at Palace Centro from 7- 16 September The Opening Night film will be SPY on September 7.

The year 2012 marks the 9th Russian Resurrection Film Festival. The largest festival of Russian Cinema outside of Russia today returns to screens Australia-wide this August and September sharing powerful cinematic moments in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Canberra and Perth.

This year our selection of films covers the grand scope of contemporary film making in Russia: 25 superb Russian national films offering a wide range of genres to cater to the most discerning cinematic tastes. Vysotsky, the most successful Russian box office film of 2011-2012 was written by Vysotsky's son Nikita and directed by Pyotr Buslov. It is a film about Russia's answer to Bob Dylan, the iconic Soviet musician and poet Vladimir Vysotsky. The hauntingly powerful crime thriller Home features a stellar cast and remarkable situations. The sublime power of the landscape dominates people living on the edge as they strive to rise above living like the wild dogs that surround them in Siberia Monamour. The classic Russian conflict between intellectuals and the rich and powerful as to what is to be done with Russia's future is superbly explored in the romantic drama Two Days. Gromozeka is a bittersweet drama that combines the parallel lives of former band members twenty years on and how their lives continue to intersect. We also have the multi-award winner, There Once Lived a Simple Woman and a feast of acclaimed comedies to enjoy after a hard day. 2012 also features Match, a story of love, football and war that is based on a true war story. Festival favourite, Shakhnazarov returns with a remarkable war flick, White Tiger - a mystical tale about an indestructible Nazi tank. And for something different, a spy-thriller appropriately named Spy. Set in a utopian steampunk Moscow it pits the Russian spies against their Nazi arch enemies in the lead up to War. Full of twists, comedy and suspense it makes for essential, although very secretive viewing.

2012 features not one, but two retrospectives – classic Chekhov screen adaptations (The Duel & Mikhalkov's much loved Unfinished Piece for a Player Piano) which complement the new romantic interlude about Chekhov himself. And then there are classics marking the bicentenary of the great victory of the 1812 patriotic war. Get in early for tickets to experience one of the most eagerly awaited cinema events of all time: Bondarchuk's Oscar winning epic: War & Peace in an all-day marathon screening.

Every new film will be an Australian premier so whether you're looking to immerse yourself in Russian culture, undertake a historical visual journey or succumb to an entertaining romance or something to take the kids to - this year's program will satisfy everyone. A special thanks to all our sponsors who continue to support this unique and memorable event. Thanks also to Palace Cinemas and Event Cinemas for putting to the big screen Russian cinematic gems.

Russian Resurrection - the best of new and old Russian Cinema. Let the Resurrection Continue!
