4EB 30th Celebration - Sunday 12 August

Radio 4EB will celebrate 30 years of broadcasting from its Kangaroo Point Studio complex next month on Sunday 12 August. The planning committee has put together a huge event to take place on the grounds of 4EB mostly in the covered car park area which will be hosting multicultural and educational stalls and food.

A big part of the day will be entertainment supplied by numerous multicultural musicians and groups on a portable stage.

Station Manager, Jo Pratt is very excited with the station's plans for the event which began well before she started in her new role.

"This is exactly what the radio station should be doing to mark this milestone event," she said.

" I'm really looking forward to meeting all of the community groups that will be attending and the local community as well,"

Scottish Program News

Scottish Group Vice Convenor, Grace Watkins received some good news this month, "I'm on cloud 9 or is that cloud 372", Isn't modern technology just great," she said.

One hour of our Scottish Programme is now being re-played on Scotland's Keith Community Radio station KCR 107.7FM. They are naming the programme 4EB Australia and it is scheduled to play on Saturday evenings from 7-8pm and then again on Sunday mornings from 10-11am. The programme has already received some positive feedback from the local Scottish community.

The Scottish Group would like to express their thanks to Alex Oliver for his input into this project and Eddie Stewart from KCR for making this happen.

Keith, is a small town in the Moray council area in north-east Scotland with a population of just under 5,000.

The town is most famous for its Strathisla Distillery plant, the oldest continuously operating distillery in Scotland. Originally founded as the Milltown Distillery by George Taylor and Alexander Milne in 1786 and the land was leased from the Earl of Seafield. In 1879, the Distillery was damaged by fire but was re-built with a bottling plant. It was bought in 1940 by Jay Pomeroy and then acquired by James Barclay of Chivas Bros. It is still the headquarters of the famous Chivas Regal.

In addition to this claim of fame the town was more recently in the news for producing the tartan skirts and uniforms for the Commonwealth Games held on the Gold Coast.

German Group News - Laternenfest 4 August

It was feared this year's annual "Laternenfest" (Lantern Parade), one of the biggest events on the calendar for German Speaking families would be cancelled but thanks to the 4EB German Group who intervened and saved the event.

The Brisbane German Language school could not use their regular venue this year for their parade but following talks with Radio 4EB and school representatives, a new plan was organised to keep this special kids magical event alive. Thanks 4EB.

The Laternenfest event will now be held on the grounds of 4EB on 4 August. Come along and enjoy the event to be held late afternoon with German food, drinks, music. A book stall and of course the lantern parade after dusk which will travel down to Captain Burke Park. So now you can embrace your (inner) German and start crafting your lantern.

All welcome to join in this celebration of a wonderful tradition.

Serbian Group News - Documentary Film

A special screening of an award winning Serbian Documentary Film: 'The Other Side Of Everything' directed by Mila Turajlic will be shown in two cinemas on 9 August. The first will be at the Elizabeth Picture theatre from 12:00 - 15:00 while the second screening will take place at New Farm Cinemas from 16:00 - 18:00.

A mysterious locked door in a Belgrade apartment becomes a symbol of Serbia's divisive history in this top prize winner at Amsterdam's International Documentary Film Festival.

When filmmaker Mila Turajlić's mother, Srbijanka, was a child, her family's apartment in Belgrade was physically divided by the communist regime to accommodate multiple families. A door to the 'other side' remained permanently locked: a reminder of the past, and a visual metaphor of Serbia's unknown or unexpressed history. Srbijanka is an outspoken academic and politician – making for highly entertaining dinner parties. Her filmmaker daughter cleverly uses her activist mother's discussions, family history and unique home, along with archival photographs and footage, to explore her country's troubled past. Along the way, Mila and her mother question each generation's responsibility to Serbia's wellbeing, in this deeply personal and political documentary.

Accessible, informative and wryly humorous, the film uses Srbijanka's tastefully decorated residence as a prism through which to view the woman, her turbulent times and the complicated history of the former Yugoslavia. – Neil Young, The Hollywood Reporter

It's a vivid and nuanced portrait of a country too often judged from the outside, still divided by what happened, and conscious of the fact that there can be no easy solutions. – Elena Lazic, Seventh Row.

Radio 4EB and GLOBAL Digital - 'It's all about the language'

From the Training Desk
with Jeffrey Milne
4EB Training Coordinator

The next Panel Training course is due to start next Monday night 23 July with two classes being run from 6-8pm and also from 8-10pm. All classes are full with a wait list. Remember, I can only take 8 in each class as this is a practical course with instruction given at the beginning of each lesson. Notes are provided each week and participants are required to keep these notes to assist them in personal training after week 2 and it's also good to keep them for future reference while undertaking studio work. Global Digital instruction is also given during the course once the broadcast concepts are understood in the 4EB training studio. This course is open to all members of 4EB and the good thing it is a benefit of membership. All new members are required to pay two years in advance.

It is a 7 week hands on course and you are required to undertake at least 3 practice sessions after week 2 to be ready for your practical test in week 7.

The practical test will show competence in studio operation by being able to read a running sheet, set up a studio, effect a take-over procedure and being able to smoothly transition from music to voice to computer back to music. It is also good to know that the panel training course does not make you an expert in the studio. As this is a new skill learned it will require further practice to become an efficient panel operator.

The July Broadcast and Induction session held at 4EB

Next Broadcast session to be held on Tuesday Night 7 August at 6.15pm

The next Panel Training Classes will begin in mid-September for Thursday afternoons and Monday Nights. Register your interest today with group approval.

The Rise of Podcasting in Australian Media

Podcasting in Australia is still a relatively new broadcasting platform and while some have embraced the idea of being an active listener or creator there are many who are still to find out about this new and exciting way of presenting a message to an audience.

A recent report by a leading national commercial radio network has explored the rise of podcasting and discovered that it is now Australia's fastest growing on-demand audio medium with around 3.5 million listeners between the ages of 18 - 64. Breaking the statistics down shows this is on an upward trajectory with 20% of podcasters being listed as new. Current listeners listed are now listening to the medium even more than they were 12 months ago.

This represents new opportunities for broadcasters and listeners who would like to hear more of their favourites and we're not talking music but a range of lifestyle topics, interesting interviews, specialist music programs, language programs and crime stories which are rapidly growing an audience here in Australia similar to a crime wave which is gripping the USA podcast market.

Like any online medium, metrics are easy to gather and measure over time so feedback can be instant for newcomers to this growing industry. The recently released report also found that nearly half of podcast listeners were likely to influence others around them in their circle of friends or through work contacts. Advertising is now becoming a real prospect and a real benefit for podcasts that seek commercial opportunities to support their projects.

I mentioned Crime podcasts were on the rise here in Australia and it seems while it is early days here it has already reached a high in other markets particularly in the USA where there are thousands producing their own podcasts alongside TV and radio networks who have the real resources and production teams to produce high quality, well researched themes. Some are even solving Cold Cases that have been around for over 30 years. It is not uncommon for some of these cases now to be re-opened following or during a podcast season all due to a new wave of crime sleuths.

In Australia, the ABC Listen App has recently released a podcast called 'Blood on the Tracks' about the death of a young boy on the rail line near Tamworth. This has been a Cold Case for over 30 years but is now being re-investigated due to new evidence. I first heard about this and the podcast phenomenon in Sydney in January this year and have listened to many crime podcasts now mainly from overseas and can see how they are taking the market by storm with listenership steadily increasing. The length of the podcast is paramount to its success and most are around the 50-60 minute mark. Some are closer to 40 minutes and the reason for this is that most can listen to an episode while commuting to and from work.

Another major investigative podcast series to reach big numbers is called 'The Teacher's Pet' produced in Australia and supported by The Australian Newspaper. This has just become one of the most successful launches of its kind amassing nearly half a million downloads since its first release. Due to this kind of interest this podcast is close to having the case re-opened with a possible trial which is the obvious goal and bringing with it a conclusion and closure for the family involved.

The series is released via Whooshkaa with CEO Rob Loewenthal mentioning this kind of success is unprecedented. It now holds the number 1 spot on the Australian iTunes podcast charts.

What does all this mean for community broadcasters? Well it has opened up real opportunities for broadcasters to consider a podcast. Topics can vary but the good thing is we now know there will be an audience out there somewhere.

Brisbane continues to be a great place to live, work and relax. It's also a safe, vibrant, sustainable and prosperous city, valued for its relaxed subtropical lifestyle and also its leisure opportunities. The 2018-19 Budget is an economic plan to achieve the above centred on the key principles on Mobility, Liveability and Sustainability.

The Mobility pledge will look at changing the way people move and connect in our city. Liveability is demonstrated by supporting more major events, local markets and better facilities for all people to enjoy while sustainability is represented by delivering new parks and greenspaces. This is for all Brisbane residents to enjoy.

The Brisbane City Council is supporting young people between the ages of 17-25 to boost their job prospects with their Youth Employability Program. The scheme is expected to not only offer young people opportunities but also develop their employability skills through networking, Q & A sessions and practical tips for achieving success. The workshops will be held in June, August and October. Hosted by generation YOU the innovative program will help build the local economy ensuring the city continues to attract and retain skilled workers.
